Working with many clients after surgery and seeing the relief they received inspired me to share this technique with others. The need for additional drugs and the early release from the hospital are additional benefits.

Off the wall and out of the box yes, yet too many people have received great results so I share this with you.

Tim had fallen in an empty pool and was waiting in the hospital for several days till his doctor returned. He was in lots of pain and stress. When I began the procedure he realized that every person who walked down the hall caused him increased tension and stress. He was grateful for the relief.
